about

Jivan van der Ende is a visual artist with a workwear kink based in Brussels.

In her practice she researches gender issues and objectification in capitalist patriarchal society. Through collaboration, gender bending and the exploration of the camp side of things, she creates video work, printed matter, performances, installation and costume work.

While losing interest in the art world, she yearned to connect her inner Butch The Builder to her slutty design skills. After years of skankifying second-hand workwear and discovering fetish work wear gear doesn't seem to be on the market, she created a first pair of hi vis assless chaps and the collection (or obsession) took off from there.

Today High Vis.Online's catalog consists of harnesses, hi-vis accessories, chaps, T-shirts, work trousers, -vests and cropped jackets. Sizes vary from XS to 3XL and size customizations are welcomed. Besides garments and accessories for the butch / bitch on the go, High Vis.Online self-publishes fanzines and other printed matter on queer identity and kink.

All items are made in Brussels and by the artist herself.
